AMSTERDAM 29 JUNE 2018

Conférence Bleue, Stockholm, June 2018

This report is the first edition of the report on “Disclosure of transfers of value to healthcare professionals, healthcare and patient organisations” compiled by Conférence Bleue. Since the EFPIA Disclosure Code was implemented and first applied in June 2016, there has been a common basis among the 33 members of EFPIA how to approach this area. However both before and after this time, the area has been under political scrutiny and legislative acts. The purpose of this report is to provide a concise and practical comparative guide on the current status in this area in the main EU jurisdictions and some other jurisdictions close to the EU that are commonly of interest to companies.

The report reflects the status quo as of June 2018. The laws, policies and code of conducts are in permanent review in most jurisdictions. Conférence Bleue intends to continue to provide regular updates to the report, which aims to become one of the reference guides on the subject.

Conférence Bleue was founded in 1997 and it has become the most prestigious European network of independent firms specialized in pharmaceutical and healthcare law thanks to its 26 members, that are reference legal advisors in their respective countries. All of them have a broad history and experience that enables them to anticipate the trends on pharmaceutical, healthcare and medical law.

Conférence Bleue is a network of highly renowned lawyers specialized in pharmaceutical and health care law that meet regularly to exchange information. One of the topics that has been identified in the discussions at the meetings as being interesting to compile a report from all members has been disclosure of transfers of value.
